This Company is formed for the purpose of purchasing and working valuable Coal lands at North Bulli, Illawarra configuous to the property of the Bulli Coal Mining Com-pany.

and working valuable Coal lands at North Bulli, Illawarra, contiguous to the property of the Bulli Coal Mining Company.

The property consists of 507 acres of lend, the freshold of which will be conveyed to the Company. The Coal known to zist on the property is practicelly inexhaustible.

The scan now proposed to be worked to identical with the Bulli Company's celebrated seem, which warles in thickness from six to eight feet; its quality is the same as that of the Bulli Company's, which has been found to improve as the workings approach this Company's property.

That the coal is undoubtedly a first-class steam coal, as is proved by the fact that the Australasian Steam Navigation Company use Bulli coal almost exclusively.

The experience of the Bulli Company shows that coal iron, this locality can be produced at a handsome profit, now inheranding the keen competition existing between the owners of coal at Newsastie.

The Direct up have satisfied themselves that the proposed capital is sufficient to open the mina, construct the railway and jetty, provide the requisite rolling stock, locomotives, two steam colliers, and leave a sufficient working capital.

It is proposed to pay the present proprietors of the land, two of whom are directors, on the legal conveyance of the property to the company, slightly paid up shares.

The 5500 almos now offered to the public are to be preferent shares, that is to say, the not profit of the company during each half-year, for the first four years after the firmation of the company, are to be applied nor towards the payment of a dividend on these shares to the artest of 10 per cent, per annum before the 1000 shares allotted to the proprietors participate in dividend.

The shares will be allotted in order of application; and in case the company be not formed the deposits will be returned in full.

Terms of payment will be 6s per share deposit on application, is on allotment, and the belance by calls at the rate of 20s per share at intervals of not less than two mouths.

Fever and Ague.

Professor B. I. Rephael, Dean New York Medical College.

Dear Sir,—I sent to the New York Medical College tosky a sase centaining one dozen bottles of gin, which I introduced to the Medical Faculty of the United States in the year 1851, under the name of Wolfe's Aromatic Schledum Schnapps.

You will oblige me by experimenting with it in the city
houlds in the following cases:—Dyspensia, gravel, gout, resumation, or any ordinary obstraction in the kthapys or bladder, and let me knew at your earliest convenience the result.

Mr. Udoipho Wolfe.

Dear Sir,—We are in receipt of your letter, also the case of gin.

Your Schnappe have been before the Faculty and in use is ser hospital for several years.

In our practice we use it in preference to any other alcohibit strankans.

To the Medical Faculty of Philadelphia.

Gentleman,—I send you this day, by Adama's Express Company, a case containing one dosen bottles gin, under the hans of Schiedam Aromatic Schanges, sa I wish to introduce it in the medical practice.

You will oblige me by having its purity tested by some well-knew chemist; also to your practice, in the following combinits:—Gravel gout, dyappens, and thesimasticm.

I only claim for it a pure alcoholic stimulant, made by a new process.

Your cely answer will mixed oblige.

TO PERSONS INTERESTED in MINING PURSUITS.—Mesera. BROWN and STANSFIELD are now prepared to supply their PATENT SELF-DISCHARGING CONCENTRATORS, either single machines or sets. These machines receive direct from the ripple tables and separate pyrites, free gold and silver from the quarts iniling. They are also the most perfect machines for the separation of silver, copper, lead, and tin ores from extraneous matter. They also do away with the necessity of using blankets, and dispense with manual labour.
Circulars containing directions for setting and working the machines, together with testimonials of practical men, will be forwarded on application to BROWN and STANSFIELD, Globe Hotel, Melbournes.

TO CAPITALISTS, Architects, Builders, &c.—The north of BOARDS of the best quality, which not being subject to the attack of the white ant, and being in every respect superior to any other timber in the market, they can confidently recommend to all who are erecting fresiclass buildings for floors which shall be both beautiful and durable. For hospitals and other buildings crooted for public purposes, it is invaluable as it absorbes but flittle moisture, and dries in less than half the time of any other timber. The floors of Government House, the Exchange, and other first-class buildings as some of which have been in contant use for upwards of twenty years, are as good as when they were laid, and will without doubt remain as for the next contury if the buildings last as leng.

(From the Times, June 19.)

DUBLIN, JUNE 18.

PROMPY retribution has overtaken the unfortunate man, Campbell, who, with others, attacked the house of Mr. Gray, near Cork, on Tuesday evening. He died yesterday morning from the effects of the wound which he received. The bullet had suddenly declined in its course, and lodged in the hip bone, which it broke. Up to the last moment he refused to give the slightest information which might compromise his companions. It has now been ascertained that Campbell did not fire at all at Mr. Gray, and that he thought that gentleman's revolver was not loaded when he fred first without effect. The decessed was unmarried, and had a brother of unsound mind. The Cork Reporter, commenting upon the occurrence, points out the folly of such expeditions, and observes that the occurrence "adds another to the many existing proofs that, however widespread discontent with the existing state of things may be in this country, it is only in the minds of a few it takes that active form which would lead men to amoney in arma against the ocn.

BEFORE Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.
THOSE V. RAYEN AND ANOTHER.

This was an action to recover for groceries sold and delivered. Defendants (Messrs. Raven and Smith) were at ene time suctioneers, carrying on business at Sydney. Flaintiff was nonsuited, as he failed to prove that Raven and Smith were partners at the time he supplied the goods. It was proved that Smith (one of the defendants) was under sge. Smith swere that he knew nothing whatever of the goods, for the value of which he in conjunction with Raven was being stud. Mr. Hellyer appeared for Smith. Raven did not sppear either persensity or by attorney.

MADDIEN V. LOCKYER.

This was a proceeding brought by one Martha Madden against Mrs. Lockyer, for the recovery of £32 18s. for wages as general service on the 16th August, 1865, and it was spreed that she should be poid at the rate of 7s. per week; shortly afterwards, her wages were raised to 8s. per week; also was paid up to the 23rd April, 1865; she continued in defendant's service until March, 1868; from April, 1866, to March, 1868, she was only paid £3 10s. The defence was that plaintiff was never a hired servant to defendant, but renained in her house voluntarily, preferring to do that to going elsewhere and obtaining wages. One winess was called, who swore to having heard Mrs. Lockyer tell plaintiff on one occasion that she did not require her services and could not afford to pay her, and that then plaintiff said she did not want wages, that she had money in the bank, and only wanted a home. Other witnesses were also called to prove that plaintiff was not a paid servant in the employ of defendant.

This was an action for damages for assault. The cominstructed by Mr. Ponnington, appeared for plaintiff; Mr. Pikcher, instructed by Mr. Dawson, appeared for plaintiff; Mr. Pikcher, instructed by Mr. Dawson, appeared for defendant.

This was an action for damages for assault. The complaint was that, on the day the assault was committed, plaintiff so me was standing at the door, when defendant went up to him and wrongfully charged him with having struck his defendant's son; defendant then struck plaintiff's aon a heavy blow on the cheet, which knocked him him into the gutter, kicked him twice whilst he lay on the ground, and then beat him several times with a galvanized iron bucket. Defendant's version of the siftsir was that on the day of the occurrence he had to pass by plaintiff's house to get some water from a tap which was used by a number of houses; he saw plaintiff's boy, and expostulated with him for having interfered with his (defendant's) children; whereupon Mrs. Byrne's runded out of her house and struck him a blow on the back with an iron bar; he ratsed the bucket in order to avert a second blow with the same weapon, when the boy came between them, and was knocked down by the bucket; the boy then pashed his mother into the house and closed the door; Mrs. Byrne then threw a smoothing iron through the window at him; the iron struck him on the hip; he (defendant) denied positively ever having intentionally struck the boy. This view of the case was supported by the evidence of three witnesses. Verdict for plaintiff for £4 lor, plus 10s. paid into Court Mr. Greer appeared for plaintiff, Mr. S. U. Brown for defendant.

TATIOR V. ELUIDOMN.

An setion for slander. The words declared upon as having been made use of by defendant are unfit for publication. Verdict for defendant, for whom Mr. Driver appeared. Mr. Pallsrton, instructed by Mr. Williamson, appeared for plaintiff.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14, 1869.

The proposed Assembly of the Great Council at Rome, which is to collect together from all quarters of the globe, and consist of more than 900 prelates, is a remarkable illustration of the facilities of travel which exist in the present day. When we turn to the Middle Ages and read descriptions of former journeys from any capital of Europe to Rome, we are impressed with the difficulty and slowness of movement and the extraordinary dangers of the way. The Apostolic description of a journey—of perils in the city, perils in the wilderness, perils among false brethren, perils by the sea, and perils by land—was fully applicable to the experience of those who professed to share his authority in the Middle Ages. There were instances of large assemblies, but probably the valet of a modern prelate enjoys more esse and comfort in his travel THE proposed Assembly of the Great Counci enjoys more ease and comfort in his trave enjoys more ease and comfort in his travel than money would have purchased in those olden times. Not long ago a large number of persons assembled as delegates represent-ing the scholastic interests of Austria. Two thousand instructors of youth met to consider their grievances and to demand reform. They assembled together in the ancient palace of the Hapsburgs, by permission of the present Euremon. This union of teachers of present Eurenon. This union of teache youth excited the utmost interest in Austrian empire. Their object was the reverse of the great Council of Rome. While they professed the utmost reverence for the they professed the utmost reverence for the authority of religion, they declared it impossible that they could fulfil their functions under the regimen of the Concordat or in the spirit of that instrument.

Our last accounts inform us that a thousan persons met in Germany to enter a protest against the principles of the Syllabus and against the assertions of authority in behalf of the forthcoming Council. As delegates, of course, their character was representative

It is easy to see how it is possible without an actual suspension for any length of time, of prelatic or scholastic duties, and without deranging the affairs of business or states manship, for those who take certain views o public questions to congregate together. The and the telegraph has given every househol the means of communicating at once any urgent event. Thus the thousands that are to meet on the present occasion have no greater difficulties to overcome than obtaining accom-modation during the term of their sojourn. This commonly requires a very general exten-sion of hospitality. The recent accounts from England shew

The recent accounts from England shew how this power of locomotion has been subservient to political agitation. Larg. deputations have come from Ireland to visit London politicians, and to stir up those who have accepted the lead according to their different ideas. The number of Irish in London is said to have been something extraordinary during the crisis. It is impossible to suppose that anything of the kind could have occurred in former times, such as when Dr. CAMPBELL visited London, and described in a manuresisted London, and described in a manu-script found and published not long ago in this colony, and reviewed by Lord Macaulay—said to be his last literary work. The travels of Dr. Johnson himself formed the subject of immense interest in the literary circles of his time from the immense labour they implied. His visit to the Hebrides, thought to be one of his most valuable works, as exhibiting an insight into human character, is a curious record of travelling toils. But the parade of preparations and the fatigue of progress filled the minds of his contemporaries and admirers with amazement. We now read and admirers with amazement. We now read that three gentlemen residing in some English parish propose starting on the "back of a b'cycle" and making a tour of the whole island, and that another accepts a challenge to go a hundred miles without stopping! Of course his steed will carry for him the small quantity of provender necessary for his journey, and he will sip and bite as the vehicle runs down an incline where the only task will be to hold incline where the only task will be to hold

All the great societies of England have grown into this habit of frequent personal intercourse and grand gatherings. The May Meetings throng London with a peculiar class of people who attend its assemblies in thousands. This plan of intercourse has been adopted by all the religious denominations. The Weslevans, from the very been adopted by all the religious genominations. The Wesleyans, from the very carliest times, had their annual Conference, which brought a proportion of their ministers together. With the increase of their numbers these assemblies are growing in multitude. The Church of England has initiated this com-bination, and now what are called Church bination, and now what are called Church Meetings — meaning meetings of Anglican Churchmen—are attended by great multitudes in the cities of England. The Anglican Syngd was another illustration of this facility for meeting. The Scottish Church has, of course, from very early days had its General Assembly. The various branches of Presbyterians have all their turn when they meet for the transaction of ecclesiastical business. meet for the transaction of ecclesiastical bus meet for the transaction of ecclesiastical ousness. The scientific institutions of England have for several years enjoyed similar opportunities, and they are now extended to the Continent, and comprehend men of science of all nations. The same may be said on behalf of the Trades Unions and their delegates, who at Geneva a year or two ago met in considerable numbers, and expounded their opinions with more force than light, the delegates being sup-ported by those who sent them.

Thus a vast movement has taken place through the civilised world for objects of an in-tellectual and spiritual character, for the cultitellectual and spiritual character, for the cultivation of science, for the promotion of ideas, for the prevention of various forms of moral evil, and for the circulation of light and truth in the various portions of the earth. Even in Russia great meetings have been held, gathering from all parts of the empire, to announce and support an idea. From the impulse thus given it is thought not improbable that in some future time this idea may be embodied in an actual policy, and become the cry of a Pan-slavic party.

All these gatherings of men for the promo-tion or particular notions of right and truth form an extraordinary characteristic of the pre-sent age. They seem to prepare the world for great revolutions. They must have not only an excelerating but also a moderating tendency. great revolutions. They must have not only an accelerating but also a moderating tendency. The discontent of men with what they are and have partly arises from their ignorance of what exists and what must be. Their intercourse abews them often their own desciencies, and prepares them to receive proferred ameliora-tions. The profession of patriotism, if not abated, is corrected. The spirit of humanity if not more elevated, at least is more diffused. Since the world saw in North and South Am-rica men of the same language, of the same religion, with the same traditions, meeting together in deadly strife, and slaying and being slain by hundreds of thousands, we have lost much of our confidence in the power of common interest and traditions to prevent war. But war when once it ceases will not bequeath all the dreadful consequences seen in former the dreadful consequences seen in former times. "Woe to the conquered," will be no longer the cry of the victors. Notwithstanding the sacrifice of life in the field, not one drop of blood has been shed under the forms of law for any purely political affair. Even the man who led the armies of the South, and governed the country with such firm, not to say des-potic domination, was discharged, and is now perhaps enjoying in some European city an undisputed repose.

It is thus that the gatherings of nations for peaceful purposes may establish a feeling of reverence for human rights and for the sacredness of human life.

BEFORE us is the Twelfth Annual Report of an English Reformatory School, from which some facts may be got of service to ourselves, it has been thought by not a few reflective people that whatever merits there may be in a reformatory ship, there are more, so far as this colony is concerned, in a reformatory farm—or such a reformatory school as shall secure to the youngsters trained in it an acquaint-ance with rural industries. In the one case we are told the lads are trained to serve on the roving wave, and will rove with it, and BEFORE us is the Twelfth Annual Report of on the roving wave, and will rove with it, and we are scarcely in a position to bear the expense of training them for other countries. In the other they are taught to profit by the application of the arts of industry on the land; and they adopt a vocation in which men are not and they adopt a vocation in which men are not much given to change, or to locomotion. All that we are supposed to be waiting for is a little guidance towards the best plans to be laid down, and these, inasmuch as our circum-stances and wants are special, will require a good deal of consideration. This point, however, will not be touched upon in the present notice of the subject.

A number of gentlemen associating them-selves together for philanthropic purposes, purchased a plot of land, some two hundred and ninety-eight acres, more or less, near the town of Red Hill, in Surrey. They had previously held land nearer London; but space there being confined, a larger area became necessary. "The Philanthropic Farm School" was then moved from Southwark to Red Hill, which is in the surrey of the region of the surrey where it exists for the removal of that species of moral leprosy induced in certain states of the social system where population dangerously congests, and the labour force sup-plied exceeds the demand for it. In other plied exceeds the demand for it. In other words, it exists for the reformation of oriminal boys. It is a voluntary association subsidised by Government. The report in our possession, being only an annual report, does not deal with the principles of the institution; and we are obliged to feel our way therefore to these, as a comparative anatomist would do, from any given member of a skeleton, to the character and habits of the primal and may therefore possibly be wide. animal, and may, therefore possibly be wide of the mark here and there.

The original notion was to deal only with the children of convicted felous; lately the admissions to the school have been confined admissions to the school have been confined to boys who have been guilty of criminal practices, especially for such offenders as are sentenced to detention under the Reformatory Schools Act. By virtue of these measure it is provided that the punishment shall partly be given in cellular penance, partly in simple detention for reformatory training. To be eligible for admission the boy must be at least twelve, and under fifteen, years of age, of sound bodily health, and capable of receiving mental instruction and industrial training. A juvenile may be discharged on the order of the Secretary of State at any period of his detention, but the conany period of his detention, but the con-clusion is usually acted upon that reform-atory training can scarcely produce a per-manent effect in a less period than three years.

The institution is well supported by in-dividuals, boroughs, and counties, though the exact mode in which the corporate aid is given does not appear. Still, it seems that, by some arrangement with the committee of management, certain counties and boroughs acquire the right, by grants from the county and borough rates, of sending a stated proportion of their juvenile offenders to the school. Kent, for instance, sends 32, Somerset 16, while the towns of Brighton, Derby, and Nottingham return respectively 2, 1, 5 juvenile members to the depravi y assembly. Many of these boys have been twice, some four times, and one ten times convicted. The general term of imprison ment is from one month to two mouths; that of detention from three to five years. In this establishment the subjects of reform are 290 in number. These are divided into five groups or families of fifty boys each, more or less, occupying separate houses built for about that number. At the head is a resident chaplain, who is respensible to a committee of management. What is the number of subordinate officers is not apparent, but the salaries amount to £987. They rent, but the salaries amount to £987. They must be aumerous, judging from the occupations of the lads. Apart from the school-masters, superintendents are required to teach in the field, cow-house, sheepfold, stable, garden, brickyard; in the tailors', shoemakers', carpenters' shops; in the blacksmiths' smithy, the bakers' bakery, and in the society's laundry and kitchen. Of these, the largest number are engaged in field work, namely, 194. In summer the time for rising is 5.30 a.m.; for post breakfast work from 6 to 8; for school from 9 to 12; for dinner and play one hour; for work from 1 to 5 p.m.; play for one hour, followed by supper, chapel, and bed in rapid succession.

Punishment is by imprisonment, flogging, and commitment. To give some idea of this it is enough to say that, distributed amongst 89 boys, there were 103 cell cases, 7 floggings, 80 boys, there were 103 cell cases, 7 floggings, and one commitment in 1868. Desertions occur sometimes, on the average 5 in a year, and these are pusished by fine—the fine, plus the expense of recovering a deserter, being borne by the boys of the family to which he belongs. Experience shews that there is always more or less of connivance on their part with this serious offence, and that the more extensive the indulence of the restless apririt or tensive the indulgence of the restless spirit or the fitful temper becomes, the less frequently it eccurs.

The rewards for good conduct consist in an ordinary form of payment for labour done, and is an extraordinary form of an honorum. Thus, in 1868, one family of 54 boys received for work £278s. 2d; for honorary pay, £2 10s. 6d, while drawbacks to the amount of £3 17s. 10d. appear to have been made to redeem fines for misconduct and desertion. The money so earned is banked for each family, and distributed pro rata to those who leave. It is scarcely necessary to point out the mussain which the family is made responsible for the misconduct of any of its members, and the powerful influence this exerts to keep in check tendencies subversive of order.

Taking the numbers discharged in 1866, '66, '67, at 234, 76 emigrated, and 188 were disposed of at home. Of these, 31-62 per cent. were not re-convicted, and 16.67 per cent. were not re-convicted, and 16.6? were re-convicted — a most encouraging result.

Now let us take a hasty glance at the Now let us take a hasty glance at the commercial part of the narrative. It is very philasthropic, doubtless, but does it pay? The farm yielded a PROPIT last year of £1231 11s., and the brickfield of £947s. 44. £1231 11s., and the brickfield of £947s. 44. These two sums, deducted from the gross school expenditure, reduce the cost per head £414s. 6d., the net cost for 1868 being £19 15s. 1d. It must be understood that all produce raised on the farm and consumed by the school is charged to it, while in return the farm is charged with all payments to the boys, and such rent as is current in the neighbourhood. It will be further interesting to observe that the cost of food per boy per week was 3s. 4½d., and of clothing per week 8½d.

These facts are sufficient to show what may be done if it be done with tact, jedg-ment, and such enthusiasm as is usually Alarm of Fire,—About 2 o'clock on last Wednesday afternoon an alarm of fire was given at the Insurance Brigade depot in Bathurst-street. Immediately on the receipt of the intelligence, Mr. Bown, with a number of brigade members, sot off with their manual engine to the center of Porches and William streets, Woolloomoloo, when the chimmey of the Imperial Hotel (late Scully's) was found to be burning furiously. Indeed at one time grave fears were entertained of the building taking fire. After the firemen, who were assisted in their landable efforts by some of the neighbours and occupants, had exerted themselves for close upon an hour, the fire was got under. The firemen therefore returned back to Bathurst-street.

FLOOD VALVE.—Our attantion has been drawn (asys the Clarence Examiner) to the medic of a self-acting flood valve, designed by Mr. J. M. Mahon, surveyor, Queenstreet, Grafton, at whose residence it is on view. The model shows an advarable adaptation of scientific principles to meet a want prevalent in such a district as the Clarence in time of floods. At a small coet, may street, gully, or awamp may be enally drained, without the possibility of the admission of the flood waters from the creeks or rivers, provision being made by the flood valve to drain off the back waters immediately upon the full of the creek or river below the level of the drain. The attention of all who hold land below the flood line is invited by Mr. M. Mahon to an inspection of the model, when he will be happy to give any information upon the subject. The principle of its construction depends on the two following stabilished facts in hydrostatics, namely, first, that the surface of a heavy liquid must be horizontal before equilibrium can take place; and second, that a portion of a fluid, however small, will resist the pressure of a portion however largo. The pressure of the water in the town before flood, is therefore greater than in the river, and in respect to the drain will flow freely from its superior gravity—but when the river ascends be upoyancy of the float. As the water in the river ascends beyond the level of that in the river ascends beyond the level of that in the river seconds to the use of the star in the same ratio, and when it subsequently descend, that in the town, the pressure on the valve increases in the same ratio, and when it subsequently descend, that in the town preponderates, and forces open the valve. This charge takes place if the river be below the source of the drain to the depth of one inch only, and therefore long before the new conditions of the same towns of the same towards the river as proceed of the water in the town seed when it subseque KANGAROOS.—These animals (says the Wagga Wagga Express) which in these districts a few years since were not by any means numerous, have, owing perhaps to the wholesale destruction of the dingo, and the rupid extinction of the aborigines, multiplied of late predigionally, and on some rune may be each absolutely to swarm. The amount of grass consumed by these creatures already very sensibly affects the stock-carrying capabilities of the rune on which they most abound, and if their numbers continue to exhibit their late rapid rate of increase, the losses that they will thue occasion will be vary considerable indeed. As their skins would be valuable for tanning purposes, would it not pay to systematically hunt them down and get rid of them? As an instance of the case with which large numbers of them might be captured, we may mention that Mr. Best, of Guanly Gunly, and a single companion, killed, last west on the Colombo Greek, in the course of four days' hunting, with four dogs, no loss than sixty-one head.

OUR MELBOURNE LETTER.

WEDNE-DAY, 11TH AUGUST.

OUR little difficulty with the pardoned Fenians is not to be got over without some small exhibition of bad blood. The Adescate—which is a sort of Victorian counterpart of the Freeman's Journal—fell foul of the Ministry, the Age, and the Argus, in their last Saturday's issue, because the Convicts' Influx Prevention Act was not to be suspended for the benefit of the pardoned men. The article offered such an open defence The article offered such an open of the Fenians as to amount to something more than an apology for them; whereupon the Age attacks the leaders of the Catholic party by attacks the leaders of the Catholic party by name, and charges them with seeking to make political capital out of their expatriated countrymen. It is mournful to witness the display of implacable hostility which is so easily provoked on both sides when causes of dissension arise like the present. Kenealy, the first of the pardoned men who arrived here after having been warned by the Cnief Commissioner of Police several times, was avreated last week under the "isflux" Act. and arrested last week under the " influx" Act, and arrested last week under the "isflux" Act, and the case was delayed at his own request unti-pesterday, when the charge against him of being illegally in the colony was gone into. On the part of the Crown it was contended that On the part of the Crown it was contended that the free pardon only removed the punishment but not the disability created by the Act. The counsel for Kerealy contended that the Act was inoperative, and that even if otherwise the free pardon wiped out all the consequences of the offence he was originally charged with. The Bench convicted the defendant, and he had to find sureties that he would leave the colony within even days. An appeal to the Supreme within seven days. An appeal to the Supreme Court against the decision is talked about.

Our Parliamentary inquiry into the working of the Lands' department proceeds steadily. As the evidence is not published it is scarcely fair to repeat what leaks out from the conversation of members of the committee, especially as the statements made with regard to the effect of the evidence are tinged with the bias of each particular narrator. The committee will probably bring up a progress report when two of the cases against members are fi ished, but if the field of inquiry is to be even approximately ex-hausted the session will have terminated long before the labours of the committee.

Another branch of a department-the railway workshops—has been under a commission of inquiry for some time past, and it is asserted that some extremely startling and damaging discoveries have been made, and will shortly be disclosed to Parliament.

disclosed to Parliament.

Although in private letters the proposed scheme of a subsidised steam service via the Cape of Good Hope is spoken of as not likely to be realised, the despatches of our Agent-General speak more promisingly. Mr. Verdon says that in answer to inquiries about rates of speed, he has advised intending tenderers to name two rates of subsidy—the one for rapid passages, and the other for slower trips. Also alternative tenders according as the return route be taken by way of the Cape of Good Hope or by Cape Horn. It appears that one company—"The National Steamship Company,"—contemplate sending a large steamer of 3500 tons, "The Queen," on an experimental voyage to Melbourne, which voyage would be intended to serve as a basis upon which to tender for the conveyance of mails and passengers in future, This time vessel has given evidence of her This fine vessel has given evidence of her quality, having performed the voyage from Bombay to Portsmouth on Government service in forty-five days' steaming time. The time named as the probable date of her departure is the 5th September. The directors of the com-pany were inquiring from Mr. Verdon as to the number of Government emigrants they might expect to be sent out in the Queen.

In another despatch Mr. Verdon tells us that he has now taken the business of emigration entirely out of the hands of the Commissioners, that he had dispatched one shipload of emigrants himself, and was advertising for another ship, which he was prepared to fill, besides having the prospect of a considerable number for the Great Britain. Mr. Verdon encloses copy of the memorial addressed by the National Emigration Aid Society to Earl Granville, urging some action on the part of the Government, and suggesting certain principles for their guidance. This society, however, is evidently adverse to the particular kind of emigration which the colonies want. Their object being to "shoot their rubbish in their neighbour's garden," it is not surprising that In another despatch Mr. Verdon tells us that chject being to "shoot their rubbish in their neighbour's garden," it is not surprising that they should say, "A spontaneous emigration is in the main an exodus of the most energetic and well-to-do of our industrist classes, and is a positive loss of wealth and resources to the empire." One of the chief relieving-officers also reminds the Emigration Committee that "the class of persons for whom the Poor Law Guardians may wish to make provision in the colonies are those whom the colonies would be glad to send back again." Mr. Verdon and the other agents general will have to match the other agents general will have to watch these movements in the interests of their re-these movements in the interests of their respective colonies.

On the subject of telegraphic communication with Europe there is nothing new. Mr. Verdon says that Captain Sherard Osborne was absent, superintending the shipping of the new French cable. He intimates that none of the companies who are projecting plans for connecting Australia by cable with Indo-European lines, have at present any idea of constructing land lines in our own territories. They assume, as a matter of course, that we shall do that for ourselves. The companies, however, would undertake that part of the work if proportionally subsidised. Of course this will be unnecessary, as we have men amongst us quite able to continue our own land lines, whether to the West Coast or the North.

The reputed mercantile fraud in Sydney has excited a good deal of attention here, not only from the reports received by telegrams and in the columns of the Herald, but from the fact of ine columns of the Herald, but from the fact of some of the goods having been sold by auction in Collins-street. The two supposed accomplices, Rogers and O'Bries, were first arrested on the strength of a telegram from Sydney, but this was held to be insufficient for their determined. tion, and the magistrates discharged them. A warrant arrived, however, a few hours afterwarrant arrived, however, a few hours afterwards, and they were re-arrested on a charge of stealing the drapery goods which were sold here. It appears that they drew £1000 as an advance from the auctioneer, and had not gone for a settlement up to the time of their arrest. They have been remanded for a week, the Police Magistrate not being satisfied with the evidence as to the stealing. The identity of the goods was fully establised by the evidence of Prince, Ogg, and Co.'s salesman, but the prisoners alleged that they were only agents for Mackinlay. The very suspicious circumstances which marked the departure of the Snowbird were known here at the time, as several insurance offices, having branches or several insurance offices, having branches or affiliated offices here, telegraphed to the man agers to have nothing to do with either vessel or cargo.

The people of New South Wides will probably be placed under an oning tion to Melbourne speculators for stirring them up to some activity in the matter of dimond mining. Th various small parties who, according to the Herald, have been taking up patches of ground about Mudgee will, it is to be hoped, grow into a new industry of respectable dimensions. If diamonds are to able dimensions. If diamonds are to be found there, these are the parties who may expect to profit by the discovery. The reported find of a great diamond of fabulous value, at Armidale, has been turned to account by the companymongers here, and telegrams about it, with others, have been posted outside the brokers' offices, with a view to draw investors. Of course, this find, if true, and if not a mere piece of rock crystal can have very little to do piece of rock crystal, can have very little to do with "mines" at Mudgee; but the public seem to like this sort of thing. A little periodical blood-letting is submitted to with wonderful placifity by the saving classes, and it is only offer the operation that they cry out.

Our Steam Navigation Board has been sitting for some days on a painful inquiry into the conduct of the captain of the Marpesia, a fine clipper recently arrived from Liverpool. The evidence was extremely conflicting, but the Board at length came to the decision that Captain Houssell had been proved drunk and incapable for command on one occasion, and frequently under the influence of drick during the voyage. Taking into consideration his long service (twenty-five years a master), the Board only suspended his certificate for six months. I have heard much satisfaction expressed amongst the underwriters here at learning that the offices in Sydney are about to establish an underwriters' association, similar to the one already in existence in Melbourne, and particulars of which were given in my letter of a week or two ago.

The very inadequate efforts which we have put forth for the preservation of the few sur-vivors of the aboriginal tribes amongst us must always be a reproach to the colony. We thought that, in addition to the neglect of these unfortunate people, the Government and its officials were also permitting the opportunity to pass of collecting authentic records of their dialects, customs, proper names, &c. It is satisfactory, however, to learn that this is not the case.

Materials are accumulating for a work which will contain a complete vocabulary of the native will contain a complete vocabulary of the native languages. A very extensive collection of names of localities, and of indigenous plants and trees, has already been made, and is constantly being enlarged. Native weapons, instruments, &c., &c., have been accurately drawn for illustrations, and we may expect in due course a very interesting record of the races we are so rapidly amplanting.

The early closing movement in Melbourne has assumed a form which reflects much credit on the promoters for their sagacity. By one and the self-same effort pecuniary resources in aid of the movement have been secured, a great the self-same effort pecuniary resources in aid of the movement have been secured, a great moral effect has been produced on the public mind, and the employés for whose benefit the movement was projected have been provided with mental pabulum for some of the evenings reclaimed from the shop. The means referred to are a series of lectures by the ablest men amongst us in the walks of literature and science, presided over by some of our most notable citizens. The closing lecture of the course was delivered on Monday evening by the Rev. Dr. Bromby, head master of the Church of England Grammar School, the Bishop of Melbourse being in the chair. This lecture is certainly not the least remarkable of the series, and contains novelties of thought and speculation, which give ample tood for discussion, if not for controversy. The subject was "Prehistoric Man." The lecturer went of necessity into the interpretation of the Book of Genesis, but cautioned his hearers against supposing that the Bible was designed to teach man either history or science. He considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the state of the considered that Adam (discated for the state of the st that the bible was designed to teach man either history or science. He considered that Adam (literally "Man") was a generic term and did not mean an individual; that the first man of whose individual history we have any record was Cain, who was one of the earliest men of the agricultural age, and who began to build cities and towns. The first races, he thought, cities and towns. The first races, he thought, were pastoral people, who from the time when their increasing numbers made food somewhat scarce, took to depasturing flocks of sheep instead of hunting them as game; that their uneventful lives afforded but little material for history, and that none had been recorded for obvious reasons. The next phase after the nomadic and pastoral would be the agricultural when the squarter would be delivered. after the nomatic and pastoral would be the agricultural, when the squatter would be driven off the face of the land by the selector. Perhaps the most startling idea propounded by the lecturer was that all our conventional notions of the great ages of the patrisrchs were wrong, that instead of their having lived many hundred years their average lives were from seventy to eighty. The years of the book of Genesis he thinks should have been months only. The original word might might be interpreted to mean the latter as well as the former, being literally a "revolution" and prophably a revolution. literally a "revolution," and probably a revolu-tion of the moon and not of the entire seasons. This not only affects our ideas of the ages to which men attained, but of the period of life at which they married, and Dr. Bromby endeavoured to shew that the Patriarchs generally became fathers at about fifteen, which, "in a hot country, and where trousseaux were so very in-expensive," he did not consider at all im-probable. That man existed anterior to the tour or five thousand years which he allows for the historic period, Dr. Bromby considers proved by the geological discoveries of modern times, especially the stone implements found amongst the remains of extinct animals and beneath ferests which have disappeared entirely from the countries where they were buried, and been succeeded by other forests of timbers, also extinct, and so forth. The Dr. wound up with an eloquent testimony to the antiquity and genuineness of the ancient records of the Bible, but reminded his audience that it was the spirituality of religious truth that made the Bible the word of life. The Bishop and others who spoke afterwards, acknowledged the ability and research displayed in the acture, but displayed in the acture, but displayed in the acture. and research displayed in the secture, but dis-sented from its deductions.

As, at the date of last advices, our ironclad.

As, at the date of last advices, our ironclad, the Cerberus, was rapidly approaching her final equipment prior to sailing, the question is beginning to be asked—what shall we do with her when she comes into Hobson's Bay? Probably the Ministry could give a satisfactory answer to the question; but, looking at the fate of the Nelson, and knowing that no step has yet been taken to train a crew for the manning of this 1 ew monitor, the public have considerable misgivings on the subject. To dismantle the vessel would be to waste all the money spent upon her, as it is certain that the only possible way of insuring her efficiency in time of war is to have her well and skilfully handled by men trained to the work in time of peace. She will come out here jury-rigged, but in port she will have nothing above her deck but her turret.

AGED SISTERS.—Three sisters, who are all widows, recently met at a cottage in the village of Three Mile Gross, near Reading, and occupied the same badroom. One was in her 89 h year, each other in her 84th year, and the third in her 81st year. Their united ages amounted to 254 years.

The import make's close with a better inquiry for some descriptions of goods. Cornsacks have been largely purchased during the last few days at 11s. 3d. to 11s. 6d. We heard of a parcel of 100 beles being done at the latter figure. Woolpacks are also firmer; fall weights are quoted at 3s. 7d. to 3s. 9d. Holders of Hennessy's bulk brandy ask 7s. 74d. for parcels. In bulk beer there is very bitle doing; bottled is more active. A good parcel of Tennant's ale was placed to arrive at 9s.; and a shipment of Borthwick's stout, slightly stained, on private terms. Breadstuffs are very firm. The Ziska took a shipment of fleur to Mauritius, making the second gone in that direction within a fortnight. Adelaide fleur to Mauritius, making the second gone in that direction within a fortnight. Adelaide silk-dressed fleur has been placed at £13 15s. to £14s. For Adelaide wheat 6s. is saked.

The counsel for the prosecution stated at the outset of the case, that the Executive in causing this prosecution simply wished, as a matter of duly, to carry out the law, so that it night not be said hereafter that they had favoured any one individual. Every facility would be given to the defendant, if the prosecution was sustained, for his leaving the colony, or for his having the question tested before the Supreme Court. The prima facis evidence of the primare; having been found guilty of a transportable offence, within the meaning of the first section of the Act, consisted of his own admissions to the police, and the documents he had produced to them. As to the effect of the Queer's parion, Mr. Ireland contended that it did not remove the disability created by the statute, but only removed the pausiament awarded by the statute, but only removed the pausiament awarded by the statute, but only removed the pausiament awarded by the statute, but only removed the pausiament awarded by the statute, but only removed the pausiament awarded by the statute, but only resident in the colony at the time the Act was passed, for then the Act would not apply to him; but the Beach held that the proof of the negative law with the defendant; also, on another point—that it was for him to show that he was not found guilty of a transportable follow; since more than prima facis evidence on both points had been adduced by the Crown. Professor Hearn, it an argument of considerable length, contended that the Act was not now in operation; it hat, if in opera

Such the results of our several experiments. The course pursued in the case of , such cane was pointedly the astraging which is the preferable variety of came three things particularly are to be determined, the quantity and weight of came per arce, the amount of juice yielded, and the density of that juice. The two latter are here set forth. At the same time I am compeled in honesty, though with regret, as bearing uniavourable on the Tabitian, to say, that the above shows more favourable for it than the reality. The quantity of juice from it was much smaller compared with the other varieties than represented in the foregoing figures. The ether varieties yielded considerably more juice than filled the westel containing the saccharemetr, the Tabitian barely as zunch as did so, while of it there were 42 lbs. 10 oz. or the light surple, 1st ratioon; and 13 lbs. 5 oz. of the light surple, 1st ratioon; and 13 lbs. 5 oz. of the Bourbon plant cane. To the second point on which our repriments were intended to bear, vis. the value of our colonial cane as a surger producing plant. The results were eminently satisfactory—made as much carried by estomers going in op style in the stream of the law of the long, moist, droppline, wet exactler; with which the cane has had to contend. Cold and rada, it seems universally schoowedged by a mossible of weather the accorded, and in a cityle of deprese.

Let us think of the long, moist, droppline, wet exactler; with which the cane has had to contend the contend of the saccorded, and in a cityle of the proper contend of the saccorded, and in a ci

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

On the subject of testing the value of cames, Mr. J. H. Garven writes to the Ularence Escasions ...

The cultivation of the sugar-came is now commanding considerable interest and attention on the Clarence and neighboring northern rivers—as also in our collection of the planted on the above rivers the enasing search. Now there are several points in regard to the matter, on which the abstroar and promisers of this industry are not applied to the came in this colony will yield a profitable amount of sugar. It is argued that if it grows to taxriantly, as it seems to do, it must run mostly to fire, and possess comparatively little of that which gives it is commercial value. How important and especially at the present stage of the sugar came among us that these points should be determined. Accordingly, as the sents to do, it must run mostly to fire, and especially at the present stage of the sugar came among us that these points should be determined. Accordingly, as the sents of the came, we determined to make a few experiments bearing upon the case, which we did in the presence of several respectable parties, who can teetify to the results. We first took a came of medium size of the various kinds, and ascertained its dimensions. We then took the weight of one foot of each cane, cut out of the middle of the plant. We not crushed a certain definite weight of each cane—than weighed the refuse, and so accessing the annual results of the warm of a road. To the Editor of the Hereid.

Sir.,—As an accident with fatal result has happened, I deem this a fitting opportunity to call the attention of the Railway authorities, and the friends of young people travelling by the crowded business trains, to a dangerous custons, which I feel sure-stains meaters and ethers agreeing with me—must result, if not discontinued, in sacrifice of human life.

I allude to the practice of jumping on the carriages, and vice cerse, when the train is in motion at a considerable rate of speed. At the Newtown station particularly, I have noticed half a score lead scamper slong the edge of the platform, with but a step testing the state of the platform, with but a step to carriage, and ride on the step until, the train comes to a stand (this occurs every morning). Of course they see no danger, nor did a guard some time ago, whom I saw do a precisely atmilar thing, with this addition, that he lost his footing, let go his hold, slipped down at full length upon the long riep and was—only saved from being cut to pieces by rolling away from, instead of under, the wheels.

Could not a guard or porter make it his duty sharply to regrimmal these adventurous young persons?

A REGULAR TRAVELLER.

To the Editor of the Heraid.

Sin,—I bey, through the medium of your valuable journal, to draw the attention of the proper authorities, and all parties interested in the steam navigation on the coast, to the following fact:—When the law regulating the lights to be carried by etcamers was introduced into this colony, two stoomers going in opposite directions and coming in sight of each other were required to part their helm:—but now the law allows the commander of the fastest vessel to be the choice of sides, the slower vessel thus being left in uncertainty how to act; in consequence of which, my own steamers, and ethers to my knowledge, have had several hairbreadth escapes. The commanders of steam vives la! I consider should not have the option of choosing which side to pass, but should be required by law to keep to their right side, even if it should be a few miles out of their course, and not risk life and property, as is now done, merely for the sake of saving a little time.

Commanders, i.e.d the greatest importance for safety of life and property that proper regulations should be strictly enforced.

I remain, Sir, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM MARSHALL,

Who MAPRED THE ALBAMA — Here is what an American paper says on the subject of the Alabama, which we preserve here—and much as we deprecated the appearance of an Englishlyscht on the scene of her richly-deserved punishment, we could never believe that a pleasure boat could ever place herself in the position of a paid auxiliary in such work as that in which the Alabama met her reward, although it is said in a letter that the Desthound was in fact acting as a tender to the Alabama. An account of her destruction will be found in our volume for 1864, July. The American paper says:—The Boston Traceller of the 15th ultimo says one of the crew of this free-boo'er, the Alabama is now on board the steamer Virginis, 1jing at East Boston. He says that the Desthound was, in fact, a paid tender to the Alabama, that she had on board the chronometers and other valuables which had been stoles from American ships (for the thieves were not permitted to land them at Cherbourg, that a few days before the fight with the Kearsarge she brought fifty men from Portsmouth, England, trained gunners, who had received their training on the British practice-ship Excellent, to work the guns; that these men, when the Alabama left Cherbourg, were stationed at the guns, and had entire control of them, for the officers knew very little, if anything, of gunnery, and that he thinks the Alabama fired three shots to one fired by the Kearsarge. The Alabama was somewhat quick in her rolling, and hence why the firing was so rapid. The gunners could not elevate or depress the guns with any degree of accuracy, therefore they trusted to uck to thall the Kearsarge for her of the money the same of the Alabama it made her tremble fore and aft, and towards the close of the action crash upon crash tore her slunost in two smidships, when she filled and west down. part of the estate runs along the right bank of the Dartbrook, and consists, on the frontages, of good agricultural land, extending back to whinstone ridges and spure leading to the dividing watershed between the Dart-brook and Cuangua Creeks; the whole being well grassed and abundantly watered. Even in the late extended drought, no scarcity was at any time experienced. On the left bank of the Broek, and at the junction of Sparker's Creek, the estate covers about 2451 acres, for the most part rish agricultural land, and upon which are situated the extensive improvements. The remaining block of 740 acres, is

As a whole, this property is admirably adequed for aboog farming, being a sund and healthy for wood growing. Its corrying capabilities are large, but with some additional outlay for fencing, its capacity for carrying stock might be assily dealled.

The homestead improvements are very prettily situated on high ground, overlooking the country for many miles. They comprise a comfortable dwelling-house, built of sione, having a wice verandsh and eight large rooms, dining and drawing room—22-6 x 18 each, library—16 x 12, and 7 bedrooms—16 x 16 each, pantry, store, bath-rosm, &c. There are also 2 large badrooms on the upper story. The collarage extends tuder the whole of the house, and is connected by an underground passage with the wine-house. This building, which is situated some distance from the house, is of two stories, built of stone, and is fitted up with fermenting vats, screw press, and all other necessary appliances for wine unking. The kytchen is detached.

These buildings stend on about 30 acres of land, of which the vineyard and orchard occupy about 18 acres. All the vines are now in full bearing, and are planted in terraces, having a favourable aspect.

The out-buildings are substantial. They comprise—barn, 40 x 40, built of atone, and shingled, with two wings, one ferming the stubling and exach-house with granary over, the other dray shed, &c. The stock, drafting, and plangelier yards are annexed to this building. The wool shed is 90 x 36, with state wool room, Exted with serve press. Sheep-yards adjoin this building.
